Improving access to education

Whyalla and Eyre Peninsula

TAFE SA is planning to improve access and expand the delivery of training programs in your region. In order to do this, we need to be more innovative and flexible in the way we deliver our services to students and we must improve access to quality training.

Our commitment to quality requires us to continually assess the training needs of students, industry and communities and ensure we are delivering our programs in the most effective and efficient ways.

TAFE SA plans to deliver training through a variety of training methodologies including:

- standard face to face training in classrooms and ‘training hubs’
- applied practical training through mixed delivery in well-equipped workshops, skills labs, studios etc
- online training supported by facilitators to increase flexibility and access for metro and regional students studying through key TAFE SA facilities and off-site locations.

Our face to face training delivered in intensive workshops or at a site will include:

- lecturers travelling to community locations (town halls, footy clubs, libraries) with modern classroom technology or
- lecturers travelling to sheep stations, vineyards, childcare centres, forests etc to train students in the practical skills required of their vocational study.

You will see TAFE SA in areas we have not been before!

We want to hear from you:

Does the training we are proposing meet the high priority training needs of your region? Will this training help get people into jobs and/or further study?

Will the way we are planning to deliver, through high quality online and locally delivered practical training and more effective use of customised technology, ensure that people get the knowledge and skills they need?

Does it make sense to deliver training in suitable community and industry facilities such as schools, libraries and sporting clubs, as well as fit for purpose TAFE SA sites, to ensure training can be delivered where it is needed?

How can you provide feedback?

- You can tell us in person during our consultation visits in your region
- Respond to our stakeholder survey at: tafesa.edu.au/access
- Or email your suggestions to: access@tafesa.edu.au

What if I am not sure what our current needs are?

Our Regional Managers are a key point of contact for all industry training needs. They also represent TAFE SA at local industry and community advisory groups. You can provide feedback through them at any time.
